Dear Ivy-Blu

You are always so happy at nursery. Sometimes you can be little bit sad when mummy leaves you but you soon cheer up and choose activities that you want to take part in.

You have built up your confidence and can now join in with other children's play which is lovely to see. On Mondays you take part in a ballet class and you can point your toes beautifully Ivy, you follow all the instructions and listen carefully to Alex the teacher. You are always willing to 'have a go' at new challenges. A few months ago you struggled to climb the A frame but now, after trying and trying you can do it and can even get over the top. You were so proud of yourself.

That's amazing, well done☺

You always take part in group time activities and I am so proud of you Ivy because you are talking so much more. You can ask for help and communicate with your friends. Your voice is getting louder and louder every day and you are using so many more words.

I like watching your concentration, the way you can pick up tiny buttons using your finger and thumb is very clever. You are beginning to explain what it is you are doing which is wonderful.

Mummy and Max joined you on V.I.P.day and for World Book Day. It was nice of them to share these times with you and join in with your play.

You were very careful when you did woodwork, you were able to knock in the nails with the hammer and told everyone that it was like Daddy, "Bang bang. Dad". You concentrated so well and stayed at the activity for a while.

When the ducklings were at nursery you enjoyed watching them swimming in the water tray. I remember hearing you laugh when they splashed the water out.

You held the duckling so carefully and stroked it. It made you smile didn't it Ivy. You said "It tickle me."

I look forward to seeing you grow and develop over the next year. It is a pleasure to have you in my group Ivy-Blu.

Love from Anna x
